

EDWIN M. FITCH, veteran Washington, D. C. representative of the Alaska Railroad presents Senator Bob Bartlett with copy of Mr. Fitch's new book, "The Alaska Railroad." The book has been described as the definitive story of North America's farthest north railroad

Okpeaha Bags 3 Polar Bears

By GUY OKAKOK
Barrow Correspondent

Robert Okpeaha shot three polar bears already. Robert said there were three when he first saw them and when he got close enough to shoot, he shot two, never did able to get the third one.

Robert had shot one when he first went up. Couple days later, he shot two more. Now he caught three bears already.

Robert is a son of Mr. Clari Okpeaha, the one who race to our village to report after the two famous flyers crashed in Walikpat. Clair is still living and he is doing fine.

(Editor's Note: Clair Okpeaha raced 12 miles to report the plane crash that killed two famous men, Will Rogers, Sr. and Wiley Post. Okpeaha was the last man to see the men alive as they

Welfare Moves Chena Building

The State Division of Public Welfare, Fairbanks District, has moved its offices into the Chena Building, Room 210, 510 Second Avenue, Fairbanks.

Up till earlier this week, the welfare offices were at 209, State Court Building in the city.

"We will be better able to serve the people of Alaska as the offices are now more centrally located," said William T. Mailer, Regional Welfare Officer.

He said it would also give the offices better opportunity to coordinate with the Work Experience and Training program which also has an office in the Chena Building.
