endorses Alcan

Tim Wallis, president of Doyon, Limited, recently announced that during its January meeting the Board of Directors of the Fairbanks-based corporation elected to endorse the natural gas transport proposal presented by Northwest Pipeline Corporation.

"Several reasons were considered in reaching our decision," Wallis stated. "The Northwest proposal is sound and appears to offer development with less environmental damage than other proposals. Then, too, as a corporation based in the interior of the state, we are interested in the employment opportunities to be generated within the region. Certainly the Northwest route would enhance our gas and oil exploration program in the Kandik if we are successful.

"Our endorsement should come as no surprise. Once our Board was satisfied that the proposal was sound, the approval was unanimous."
