

A Message for Tundra Times Subscribers:

(Joining the Tundra Times staff March 1, Bill Ares was previously employed as director of transportation in the Tanana Chiefs Conference Native Services Department.)

Dear Subscribers:

The Tundra Times is currently overhauling its circulation and distribution department machinery and filing systems, in hope of better serving you, our readers.

I have found that many of the records are incorrect and in great need of updating.

Starting next week, some readers who have been getting the paper without paying for their current subscription will be dropped from the mailing list. A lot of readers may be involved.

If you are paid up and suddenly stop getting your copy of the Tundra Times, please let us know immediately, so the error can be corrected. If you know that your subscription is about to be cancelled because you have not paid up, send your check or money order for $15 immediately, so we don't have to drop your name from the subscription list.

Think back, Have you renewed your subscription to the Tundra Times within the last 12 months. If not, let's hear from you immediately.

We don't want to drop you from the subscription list. We are proud to include you as subscribers and besides, we need you.

William Ares
Circulation Manager
