

Ambler, Shungnak, Kobuk Turning Out Fine Lettuce, Turnips, Onions

In Ambler, Shungnak and Kobuk 4-H club members gardens displayed fine lettuce, turnips, rutabagas and onions that are adding to the family food supply. In each village, folks have remarked about how good turnip greens taste with fish.

In Kobuk recently, the 4-H Club set up an exhibit of garden produce at the school house and invited everyone in the village to see the display. A program was also put on by the members with Jack Horner, president, acting as Master of Ceremonies.

As a happy ending to the program, the members were presented achievement pins by their leader, Amelia Gray. These pins are provided for 4-H members through the courtesy of the Alaska Bankers Association. Mrs. Gray was presented a 2-year leadership certificate from the University of Alaska Cooperative Extension Service.

Besides gardening, members of the Kobuk club have carried projects in woodcarving, sewing and knitting. Members receiving pins were: Albert Bernhardt, Roberta Bernhardt, Marilyn Gray, Jack Horner, Marjory Horner, and Lean Tickett.

This 4-H Club has an unusual name, Ineuvak. The name was chosen from a mountain just north of the village, meaning, among several peaks, "the highest one."
