

Proponents of opening the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge to oil development squared off with environmentalists recently in a four-hour panel sponsored by the Alaska Fish & Wildlife Federation and Outdoor Council. Among panelists favoring ANWR exploration was Jacob Adams, president of the Arctic Slope Regional Corp. Adams said the Eskimo people must be permitted to explore and develop the oil and gas potential of their privately owned lands in ANWR.