

Alaska Arts Southeast announces registration for Fine Arts Camp

Alaska Arts Southeast Inc. announces that registration is now open for the 14th annual Fine Arts Camp in Sitka.

Dates for camp are: Junior High, sixth through eighth grades, July 7-16; Senior High, ninth through 12th grades, July 17-28.

In-state tuition, room and board is $315 for junior high and $345 for senior high through May 1.

Anyone who is not able to make full payment on or before May 1 should contact Alaska Arts Southeast to make arrangements for payment.

After May 1, tuition, room and board costs increase to $415 for junior high and $460 for senior high.

Out-of-state tuition, room and board is $415 for junior high and $460 for senior high if payment is made by May 1. After May 1, the tuition costs increase to $625 and $650, respectively.

Twenty professional artists will be on hand to teach a full complement of subjects including theater, dance, creative writing, music and visual arts, including Native arts.

Artist-in-Residence will be Jim Schoppert, well known Tlingit carver. Schoppert is currently teaching at the University of Alaska-Fairbanks. He is on the board of trustees for the Alaska Institute of Native Art and has work showing throughout the Pacific Northwest and Alaska.

The camp's artistic director is Hal Ryder, theatre consultant and director, currently teaching at the Cornish Institute of Art in Seattle. Ryder has taught at Fine Arts Camp for the past two years.

Ten counselors and other staff, from Alaska and the Pacific Northwest, will round out the 1987 staff.

Mark Lyke, a creative writer and yearbook supervisor from Bartlett High School in Anchorage, will be the head counselor. Carol Secor from Fairbanks North Star School District will be the camp nurse.
