

St. Paul Island residents recently rescued 150 crew members of the 340-foot floating processor "All Alaskan." The vessel had been stranded along the shore of the Bering Sea Island for three days before the rescue late last month. Many of the crew were in the early stages of hypothermia when they were rescued, according to John Simpson of URS Corp.

photo by John Simpson