

Fishing and oil are our most valuable liquid assets.

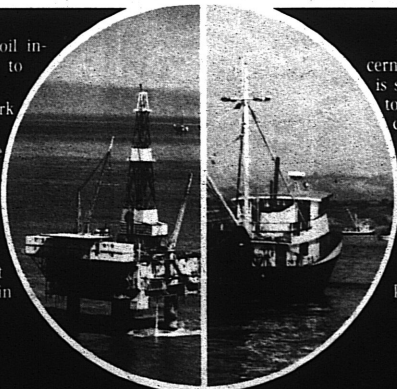

And both can work together.

The fishing and oil industries are both vital to Alaska.

And both can work together.

Other parts of the world with interests and concerns similar to Alaska's are successfully sharing offshore resources.

A partnership that can work equally well in Alaska.

The oil industry is concerned about marine life and is sensitive and responsive to the needs of Alaska's coastal communities.

Our research and technology provides answers each day to new questions regarding our marine environment.

A success story we're proud of.
