

Down-to-earth technology.

Alascom operates more than 150 satellite earth stations in Alaska — bringing long-distance telephone service to virtually every community of 25 persons or more, and live or same-day television and radio transmissions to more than 90% of the state's population. Our satellite telecommunications network links all Alaskans with each other, and with the rest of the world, instantly. Now a resident of Hoonah can chat with a cousin in Huslia, confer with a congressman in Washington, or laugh with a pen-pal in Paris.

Alascom. We bring space-age technology down-to-earth.
