

Native Students Graduate at UA Commencement

Last Monday at the University of Alaska commencement exercises, two native men received their masters degrees in education and they were William George Demmert, Klawock, Alaska and Oscar Kawagley of the Kuskokwim Delta area.

Also five men and women received four-year college degrees; Neal Richard Foster, Nome, Alaska, business administration degree; Jeanmarie Larson, Fairbanks, a degree in history;

(Continued on page 4)

Native Students Graduate . . .

(Continued from page 1)

Phyllis A. Fast, Anchorage, degree in English; Clarence Towarak, Jr., Unalakleet, degree in education; and Richard Atuk, Nome, a bachelor of science degree.

Two men received associate degrees and they were: Samson Peter, Jr., Fort Yukon; and Bert Im Reamey, Pilot Point.

Five men received mineral industry technician certificates and they were:

Victor Kotongan, Unalakleet; Donald Charlie and Charlie Titus, Minto; George

Edwards, Barrow; Harry Morris, Cordova; and Wilfred John, Fort Yukon.

The five men trained in such things as blasting, mineral identifications, methods of mining, surveying and courses in petroleum industry.

They are now being employed in petroleum industry and mining industry.

In addition to his degree in business administration, Neal Foster of Nome received a commission as a 2nd Lieutenant in the U.S. Army Military Intelligence.

Foster will be reporting for duty in September.