

Support the Daily News

Last week the Anchorage Daily News ran a front page message to their readers soliciting community support to keep them in business. The News has always helped the Tundra Times. A few years ago, this paper was in a serious financial crisis and the News had donated their time and staff to help us out.

Their help was one of the major reasons for the survival of the Tundra Times. We urge all our readers and advertisers to support the News. That paper won a Pulitzer Prize for public service this year. It would be a sad and tragic day if they would have to fold. The News is one of the most objective papers and keeps the standards of professional journalism that we all aspire to in the state.
