

Berklee College will conduct music workshops

BOSTON - Distinguished Berklee College of Music faculty members Bob Winter and Greg Hopkins and noted Berklee alumnus Mark Henry will conduct a series of highly informative music workshops and clinics at the University of Alaska to highlight the prestigious 1985 Fairbanks Summer Arts Festival July 29 through August 11.

The Festival, which this year will feature the legendary Cab Calloway as special guest artist, annually draws from among the nation's most outstanding music educators in presenting two weeks of exciting lecturers in areas ranging from vocal and instrumental performance techniques to improvisation and conducting.

Renowned jazz pianist Bob Winter, a member of the celebrated Boston Pops Orchestra, has performed with such luminaries as Teddy Wilson, Clark Terry and Henry Mancini. Acclaimed trumpeter Greg Hopkins, who has served as featured soloist with the famed Buddy Rich and Louis Bellson Big Bands, currently co-leads the critically hailed Wayne Naus/Greg Hopkins Big Band in performance at premier musical showcases throughout New England. Gifted bassist Mark Henry's long list of credits includes performances with the Boston Pops as well as the popular Boston Light Opera Company.
