

Alaska Today solicits manuscripts, photos

Alaska Today, the award-winning magazine published by students at the University of Alaska-Fairbanks campus is currently soliciting manuscripts and photographs for the 1986-87 edition.

While the 1986-87 issue of ALASKA TODAY will reflect the format of previous editions, an emphasis will be placed on Contemporary Alaska. Alaska Today is searching for manuscripts and photographs that portray the Alaska of today, so that we may be able to understand where Alaska will be tomorrow. Alaska Today is interested in the people of Alaska, their lifestyles and endeavors to create a state they are proud to live in. Alaska Today desires manuscripts and photographs of Alaska's peoples, cultures, arts, science, politics, recreation, industries, cities, towns, and villages. Many other topics exist, please do not let our imaginations limit your ideas.

All queries, manuscripts and photographs should be submitted to Alaska Today, Department of Journalism and Broadcasting, University of Alaska, Fairbanks, Alaska 99775. Deadline for acceptance of manuscripts is February 11, 1986.
