

Kitten and Puppy Capture API Hearts

(From Kinmuk Reports)

A warm-hearted innovation in therapy for patients at the Alaska Psychiatric Institute is paying off in happy dividends.

A puppy and a young cat have joined the staff and their playful antics are brightening the days for all at the Institute.

Recently, Miss Kathy Franz and Miss Julie Allerding, therapists at API, requested the SPCA to donate a kitten and a puppy and so it was that "Dubie," a young tomcat, and "Siggie," (short for Sigmund Freud), a brown and black terrier with big feet, joined the therapy staff.

Reports are that several patients heretofore difficult to reach, are joining the others in enjoyment of Dubie and Siggie.

As far as the kitten and the pup are concerned, their "work" days are all play—and everybody's happy!
