

'Touch N' Go' puts Supreme Court decisions on Net

Recent Alaska Supreme Court Opinions are now available on the Internet's World Wide Web within hours of their release by the Alaska Court system, courtesy of Touch N' Go Systems, Inc. Alaska is now the second state to have its Supreme Court Opinions available on the Internet. They can be found at "<http://touchngo.com/sp/sp.html>".

Touch N' Go Systems has also set up the Alaska Legal Resource Center, providing links to the Alaska Statutes, US Supreme Court Opinions, the entire United States Code and other Alaska and national legal resources. The Alaska Legal Resource Center can be found at "<http://touchngo.com/lglcntr.html>".

In addition to these free services, Touch N' Go Systems is offering free beta testing of its true Windows time and billing program for attorneys, accountants and other professionals who bill primarily on an hourly basis. The program, Touch N' Time, is uniquely suited to firms who need to bill out time for 10 people or less.

Touch N' Go Systems, established last year by local attorney Jim Gottstein and computer expert Steve Snyder, is a computer consulting and software development company specializing in Windows and Windows NT applications. Touch N' Go Systems offers individualized assistance in:

- Windows, Windows for Workgroups & Windows NT, including networks.

- Internet World Wide Web Home Page Preparation and Storage

- Internet Access and Internet Windows NT Server Applications

- Law Office transition to Windows
- Trouble Shooting

- Scanning Services

- File Conversions, including mainframe to PC.

- Custom Programming in Microsoft Access, Visual Basic, SQL and other Windows programs.

For more information, visit Touch N' Go's Home Page at <http://touchngo.com/index.html>;

e-mail Touch N' Go at touchngo@touchngo.com; mail to 406 G Street, Suite 210, Anchorage, Alaska 99501, or telephone 264-6329.