

A SUPPLY TRUCK for the trans-Alaska pipeline project crosses the Yukon River on a bridge of ice. Up to 70 trucks per day are crossing the 6-foot-thick bridge. The trucks are hauling freight, supplies and equipment to construction camps north of the Yukon. A permanent bridge across the river, upper left, is being built by the State of Alaska with Alyeska Pipeline Service Company sharing the cost.