

Anaktuvuk So Thankful for Fuel Oil But Diesel Smell Drives Foxes Away

By RAYMOND PANEAK
Anaktuvuk Pass, Alaska

We the people of Anaktuvuk Pass want to thank the Bureau of Indian Affairs for the tractor and helping us on to lengthen the airstrip to 4,800 feet and with 50,000 gallons of diesel fuel oil and with the stoves which they work real good. And with plenty of housing materials.

The people says that living is much better, but for the trapping after they work with the stoves or when refilling the barrel, when they got in they clothing and go out to put trap, that the different stories, because animal smell the trap and went away.

But everything is much better. Also want to thank the Alaska Airlines for hauling the stoves oil to village and the Interior Airways for hauling housing materials.
