

Memorial Valentines by Woman Go to Psychiatric Institute Folks

In loving memory of her husband John J. Thompson and two friends who met their deaths in a plane crash on September 3, 1965, Mrs. John J. Thompson of 225 North Flower Street, Anchorage, Alaska, provided valentines for all patients at the Alaska Psychiatric Institute.

Decorated valentine boxes were given to all wards. This is the fourth annual special remembrance by Mrs. Thompson.

"When I was a child, we did not always have money to buy valentines, and so we made them. I remember how much these meant to us, and I want to provide some joy to others in memory of my husband," Mrs. Thompson said.
