

2 Alaska airports get federal grants

Two more Alaska airports are the recipients of Department of Transportation Federal Aviation Administration grants totaling almost $3.5 million, according to the Alaska Congressional Delegation.

Sand Point airport will receive $2.5 million for obstruction removal and to begin phase one of a project to realign and lengthen the runway.

St. Paul airport will receive $932,813 to acquire aircraft rescue and firefighting equipment and to construct an equipment building.