

Bremerton Man Donates Books

E.W. Johnson, of Bremerton, Washington, notified the Tundra Times this week that he wishes to donate a set of carving tools and a number of volumes of National Geographic Magazines to some village library or individual in Alaska.

Responding to an appeal for books for the Arctic Village library by Joel Tritt, Mr. Johnson forwarded magazines and books to the village.

Mr. Johnson indicated that he would forward the carving tools to the Tundra Times, where they would be distributed.

He requests that anyone who may desire the magazines write him in Bremerton. Mr. Johnson's address is 1743 Burwell Street, Bremerton, Washington, 98310.

YOUNG ESKIMO DANCERS—Perhaps feeling a little unsure of the proper movements, two Eskimo youngsters at Kotzebue are doing an Eskimo dance. With few more performances, the youngsters will be fine dancers. More children are taking part in dances at Kotzebue this year during Eskimo dance entertainment for the tourists sponsored by the Wien Consolidated Airlines.

The tour season is now in full swing in the hub village on Kotzebue Sound with dogsled rides, craft demonstrations and nalakutuk (blanket toss). The Eskimo dances at Kotzebue are performed nightly during tour season.

RASSP Graduates Ten Human Services Aides

Ten natives from Alaskan villages recently completed training as Human Services Aides under the Rural Areas Social Services Project in Bethel. Carl Berger, project coordinator, announced that the villagers have been trained to eventually perform most State welfare services in their respective villages.

An additional ten trainees join the program this month to be retained as Human Services Aides.

Those recently completing training evaluated their progress and outlined their plans for the future.

"Working with people's problems isn't easy, but it will be a work of challenge knowing we will be a part in society who will be helping lessen people's problems," Akiachak trainee John George said.

John James Smith, of Lower Kalskag, said, "I am going to school again after 40 years, also with the boys and teachers and State of Welfare. I will try my best."

Kwethluk trainee John Andrew stated, "When I go out on the field, I will get acquainted with all my clients and inform them of the 'Fair Hearing' rights
