

Trustees helped in suit

To the Editor:

I was glad to see the Nov. 11 Tundra Times cover the Village of Kaktovik's successful lawsuit over Interior Secretary Watt's handling of oil exploration in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

Your readers may be interested to know that the legal representation for Kaktovik and the other plaintiffs in this lawsuit was provided by Trustees for Alaska, a public interest environmental law organization. Trustees for Alaska has also been involved in a number of other actions aimed at protecting the subsistence resources of rural Alaskans.

Besides Kaktovik and Trustees for Alaska, the plaintiffs in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge suit are the Alaska Center for the Environment, Fairbanks Environmental Center, David Benton, and Robert A. Childers.
