

CELEBRATION WELL ATTENDED

At the recent whaling celebration at Point Hope, there were close to 200 people visiting from Fairbanks, Nome, Kotzebue and other villages, according to Kenneth Pletter, VISTA worker in that village.

Point Hope has about 375 people in population and the little settlement really bulged with the many visitors.

The people were treated to one of the oldest traditions, the whaling celebration.

Five whales were caught during the season.
