

Lind to serve as Education chief

by Steve Kakaruk

Tundra Times

Marshall Lind has been reappointed to the position of commissioner of education with the state of Alaska. Previously, Lind served as commissioner of education from 1971 to 1983.

Commissioner Lind said, "I intend to do the best job possible," during his tenure as commissioner.

Commissioner Lind first came to Alaska in 1961 from Wisconsin as a teacher for the Bureau of Indian Affairs. "This is where I first started; I worked for six years in the Lower Kuskokwim district," said Lind.

Lind left Alaska to continue school, then returned in 1969 and worked as the Superintendent of Schools in Kodiak until 1971, when he was first appointed to the commissioner's post.