The University of Alaska Fairbanks is seeking applications for a tenure-track teaching position in Social Work at the Assistant Professor level beginning Fall 1989. This is a field position based in Fairbanks that offers an unique opportunity to help develop the social work program in the multi-cultural areas of rural Alaska. The position requires the development and teaching of courses to off-campus students through methods of distance delivery, coordination of the program in Interior Alaska, which involves advisement and tutorial support for regional students, development and supervision of field practice, working closely with other rural faculty, development of working relationships with social agencies and community groups in the region, and air and road travel for instruction and support of students.

Qualifications: M.S.W. with two years post-masters practice experience and university teaching experience in social work and the human services. Doctorate in social work or related field preferred. Preference also given to applicants with multicultural professional experience, particularly with Native Americans, experience with distance modes of education, and work with non-traditional students. Field faculty should have an interest in rural education and in research that addresses problems of rural and Native populations. Salary dependent on above qualifications and preferences.

The College of Rural Alaska has campus sites in rural Alaska and a special commitment to Native Alaskans, rural, and multicultural communities. The greater Fairbanks area is a modern community of over 80,000 people, with spectacular scenery, cultural activities, and unlimited opportunities for outdoor activities all four seasons of the year.

Please send vita and three letters of reference to Gerald S. Berman, Ph.D., Chair, Search Committee, Department of Behavioral Sciences and Human Services, University of Alaska, Fairbanks, Alaska 99775-0900. Application must be postmarked by March 1 to be considered.

The University of Alaska is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer and educational institution. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply. Your application for employment with the University of Alaska may be subject to Public Disclosure.
