In addition to flying the people of Alaska around the state, Alaska Airlines has also been known to give the animals of Alaska a lift when they need one. We've done everything from helping the Fish and Game Department give a rare blue bear a new home at the Anchorage

Zoo to giving a seal who needed an emergency stomach operation a free trip to Seattle.

And even though it means going out of our way sometimes, we're glad to help our state's animals whenever we can. Because Alaska Airlines is part of Alaska.
