

CINA holds public meetings

The Cook Inlet Native Association and the Administration of Native American Programs will begin a series of community meetings to identify the gaps and barriers in 26 service areas affecting the Anchorage Native Community.

The public is invited to speak at these meetings which begin at 6 p.m. at CINA, 670 W. Fireweed Lane.

The June 22 session will hold discussions ranging from 30 to 45 minutes on such matters as child and family, family planning, recreation, aging, and alcohol, and drug substance abuse.
