DOES YOUR ADOLESCENT HAVE PROBLEMS WITH HIS OR HER
SCHOOL PERFORMANCE, SOCIAL BEHAVIOR OR SELF CONTROL?

Growing up is never easy. For some, the stressful changes of adolescence are more than they can handle. The teenage years are supposed to be fun and carefree, but you find your adolescent is frequently hostile, violent or depressed.

School is a problem. Truancy. Short attention span. Failing grades. No one at school has been able to solve the problems and now the school authorities are looking to you to handle these complex situations.

Or perhaps you suspect your son or daughter of drug and alcohol involvement.

Whatever the case may be, you fear your child may be headed for juvenile hall. CHARTER NORTH HOSPITAL'S Adolescent Treatment Program helps "troubled teenagers" ages 12-18 develop skills necessary to reverse this downward spiral. In a caring, constructive environment, our adolescent program helps young people turn their lives around, achieve pre-adult status and regain their chances for a future.

Treatment is covered by most insurance policies, including CHAMPUS. Call the intake coordinator at CHARTER NORTH HOSPITAL 333-7575, and talk confidentially about the "troubled teenager" in your family.
