

Senate OKs $120 million for military

The Senate gave final approval recently to a military construction appropriations bill that will fund nearly $120 million in building projects in Alaska, according to Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska.

The Fiscal Year 1990 Military Construction Appropriations bill will now be forwarded to the president for his signature.

The Air Force projects include:

- $23.7 million for Shemya Air Force Base to build a cold storage and subsistence warehouse, communications and fuel operations facilities and upgrade existing fuel and water systems.

- $21 million for Eielson Air Force Base to build a supply complex and to expand and alter an existing vehicle maintenance complex.

- $8 million for King Salmon Air Force Base to expand a parking apron and build a fire protection facility.

- $5 million for the first phase of a dormitory alteration at Clear Air Force Base.

- $2.4 million to build a combat arms training and maintenance facility at Elmendorf Air Force Base.

Navy projects include $36.8 million for Adak Naval Air Station where the money will be used to build a hospital, an aircraft direct fueling station, a harpoon missile magazine and inert storehouse and an ordnance handling pad. The funds also will be used to add to the bachelor enlisted quarters.

Army projects include:

- $14.8 million to build a physical fitness training center at Fort Wainwright.

- $3.35 million to build a communications facility at Fort Richardson.

Alaska National Guard projects include:

- $2.3 million to alter a composite squad operations facility at Eielson Air Force Base.

- A total of $800,000 to expand Army National Guard Scout armories at Noorvik, Tununak and Wainwright.

In addition, the bill provides $1.2 million to acquire a Navy Reserve center in Anchorage and $1.4 million to build an Air Force Reserve civil engineering training facility at Elmendorf Air Force Base.
