NOTICE OF ADOPTION OF EMERGENCY REGULATION

As required by AS 44.62.250, notice is given that, under the authority of AS 44.47.800.820, the Department of Community and Regional Affairs adopted on January 19, 1993, as emergency regulations, 19 AAC 70.010-19 AAC 70.040. The regulation, C.H. 70. RURAL DEVELOPMENT INITIATIVE FUND, is a new chapter established under the Department's administrative regulations for a newly created rural small business loan program to be administered by the Rural Development Division of the Department under the above cited statutory authority. Adoption of these regulations will establish the criteria and procedures for use of money in the Rural Development Initiative Fund and address the following: Allowable uses of money in the fund, purchase of participation interest and size of participation interest, loan guarantees, reserve accounts of the fund, borrower and lender eligibility, servicing agreements, interest rates, required collateral and general terms of loans, loan assumptions and modifications and loan application review and appeal.

This regulation takes effect on January 19, 1993.

This action is not expected to require an increased appropriation.

Copies of this regulation may be obtained by writing to the Department of Community and Regional Affairs, P.O.Box 112100 Juneau, Alaska 99811-2100; or Department of Community and Regional Affairs, Division of Community and Rural Development, attention: Elstun Lauesen, Statewide Economic Development Specialist; 333 W. 4th Avenue, Suite 220, Anchorage, Alaska 99501-2341.

Notice is also given that the Department of Community and Regional Affairs intends to make this regulation permanent under AS 44.62.260, and any person interested may send written statements or arguments relevant to the action proposed to the Department of Community and Regional Affairs, Division of Community and Rural Development, attention: Elstun Lauesen, Statewide Economic Development Specialist; 333 W. 4th Avenue, Suite 220, Anchorage, Alaska 99501-2341, no later than March 1, 1993. In addition, the Department of Community and Regional Affairs will hold oral public hearings relevant to the action proposed at a date, time and place to be published and publically noticed.

"THIS IS YAKUTAT"

Bert Adams, Sr., who writes under his Tlingit names Kadashan and Naats'keek, offers one of the first and few glimpses into the daily lives of the Tlingit Indians. His stories describe the Tlingit as they live today in Southeastern Alaska. The Tlingit have been in contact with Westerners for over 250 years. The pervasive thinking is that they have completely abandoned their traditional culture and values in favor of western ways. While his writings were not specifically designed to counter this popular supposition, Bert successfully describes, in a simple manner, the ways in which the Tlingit have incorporated traditional beliefs and values into their daily lives.

He shows his greatest strength when he writes of the common, ordinary events in village life. A trip to the store is filled with the subtle nuances and thoughts of individuals reared in both the Tlingit and western cultures. Hunting and fishing trips illustrate the challenges facing the participants as well as the simple pleasures of these ventures. Additionally, Bert aptly reveals the knowledge villagers possess of their environment. The author also deals with the conflicts and tensions faced by Tlingit youth whose world is challenged by new ways. In this collection, the author also offers his own thinking of the institutions which act as a buffer between the Tlingit and Western societies and on the laws that impact Tlingit culture.

Bert's stories reveal an intimate knowledge as well as love of village life. His enthusiasm carries over to readers. When his stories were first published in the "ALASKA NATIVE MAGAZINE", they were instantly popular. This collection should receive the same warm welcome.
