

KB2XTC Calls Six Satellite Villages

On Thursday, May 18th, at 8 p.m., College KB2XTC called upon six different satellite village affiliates to participate in a unique, cooperative idea exchange.

Mrs. Maureen Holden, Acting State 4-H Leader, was on hand at College to discuss 4-H clubs and what they are all about.

The statewide satellite radio system proved to be a most effective means of communicating: many different ideas on upcoming 4-H summer projects and plans were shared on the air. Responding villages, including Tanana, Anchorage, Fort Yukon, Juneau and Nome, were all able to talk about their future plans and current needs, and asked other participants to help with possible suggestions.

Children in the villages were also available to talk about their favorite 4-H projects. Among their most popular plans on the agenda for summer are: camping, gardening, outdoor cooking, and all kinds of craft projects.

In a very relaxed, give-and-take atmosphere, satellite radio became a useful and very practical idea exchange — on a statewide basis — for all village listeners.

Produced by the Fairbanks North Star Borough Library, and sponsored by the Alaska Library Association, "What do you want to know?" is aired every Thursday at 8 p.m.

On June 1, the topic will be "Sewing Tips" with Jean Burano and Ellen Ayotte of the Cooperative Extension Service.
