

Vaccination Against Rubella

If all children between 1 and 12 years old are vaccinated against rubella, the number of birth defects caused by that disease can be sharply reduced, the March of Dimes reports. Youngsters are the main sources of infection.