DESIGNED BY ARTIST MARVIN OLIVER AND PRODUCED BY NORTH-WEST PENDLETON AND PENDLETON WOOLEN MILLS.

This blanket is the first blanket to be produced in honor of the Northwest Coastal Salish Tribes.

Marvin Oliver is a world renowned Native American artist. In addition to being director of the American Indian studies program at the University of Washington, he is also the curator of Native American Art for the Burke Museum in Seattle, Washington.

Retail price $175.00

The Pendleton Indian legend started with its very first customers, the Native American. Pendleton Woolen Mills began this rich heritage in the early 1900's with their appealing Indian robes and shawls. For many years these blankets have served as a standard of value and tradition of Indian belief and respect.
