

First Migratory Bird Workshop Held in Anchorage

JUNEAU — Alaska's first migratory bird workshop was held in Anchorage April 3 and 4 with representatives from state and federal agencies, private industry and Canada planning to attend.

James W. Brooks, commissioner of the Alaska Department of Fish and Game, said that the biologists, educators and administrators discussed migratory bird projects and identified areas of cooperation between the various agencies involved.

Specific migratory bird issues that were considered include areas of agency responsibility, habitat inventories, subsistence hunting, state-federal land withdrawals, population status of migratory birds, habitat preservation and enhancement and new federal treaties.

Agencies that planned to send representatives included Alaska Department of Fish and Game, the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, University of Alaska, U.S. Forest Service, Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. and the Canadian Wildlife Service.

Attention: Students AGES 8 to 18

The newly formed Alaska Native Commission on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse is having a statewide contest for students. As you probably don't know much about the Commission, here is our main purpose:

To provide for relief of Alcoholism and drug-related problems, for the advancement of education and science relating to said problems, to combat community deterioration and juvenile delinquency resulting from alcoholism and drug abuse, to instruct the individual for the purpose of proving or developing his capabilities and to instruct the public on subjects useful to the individual as related to alcoholism and drug abuse, to engage in research and to obtain scientific information pertaining to alcoholism and drug abuse, and to make such information available to the interested public.

To form associations with the regional areas and the government through which residents and organizations of Alaskan Native communities may associate for the purpose of designing and developing such programs and coordinating the activities of public and private agencies and programs relating to alcoholism drug abuse.

Before we officially begin operations, we would like a slogan and an emblem to identify our commission. The slogan should be short in sentence but to the point and have a meaning behind it. The emblem might be something in one corner or two corners or all corners; or it might be on one side of the sheet or both sides or it might cover the whole sheet. Whatever kind of emblem you submit, please remember any typewritten material will have to be legible through the emblem.

Contestants should mail in their entries to the address below:

You may enter as many entries as you wish. All entries must be in by December 31, 1973. Any entries postmarked after December 31, 1973 will be disqualified. The decision of the judges is final. The first prize for this event is $100. There will also be an Honorable Mention.

Good luck to all of you on your entries!

Sincerely yours,

Alaska Native Commission on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse
Board of Directors and Committee Members

ATTENTION

INDIVIDUALS, SUBDIVIDERS AND REAL ESTATE AGENTS REQUIRING NEW ELECTRICAL HOOK-UPS FROM GVEA DURING 1973

Because of the anticipated volume of hook-ups versus limited manpower and equipment, line extension delays of two months or longer can be expected if the customer fails to complete ALL his requirements by July 1 for overhead line extensions (see special underground requirements below).

To help us meet your electrical requirements and minimize delays, we recommend that you:

- construct your new residence or business adjacent to Golden Valley's many miles of existing power lines if possible.
- check with GVEA Customer Service department concerning availability of electric service if you plan to purchase property that is not adjacent to suitable distribution facilities.
- purchase your property, arrange for financing, THEN apply for power and complete necessary paperwork and pay required fees EARLY.

UNDERGROUND LINES

Due to the limited (June to September) construction season for high-voltage underground facilities and production delays for required material, GVEA will be unable to install high-voltage underground lines in approved platted underground subdivisions unless the following requirements are met:

- apply for power, secure Borough/GVEA approval of plat for underground power installation, complete ALL paperwork and pay required fees and charges by May 15.
- ROW clearing and conduit for road crossings must be ready for GVEA final inspection by June 1.
- no excavation or construction (except by GVEA) should be in progress near ROW or conduit road crossings after June 1.

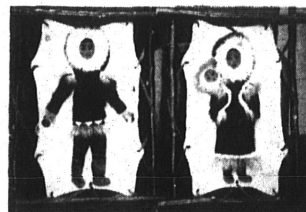

This message from Golden Valley Electric Association is intended to assist those planning construction during 1973. Please contact our Customer Service Department for further information.
