

Canadian Paper Seeking Ways to Honor Service

The Whitehorse Star complained in an editorial last week that little in its area tells visitors that Robert Service lived, worked and wrote his most famous poems in Whitehorse.

The editorial suggested that the Whitehorse Museum ask to borrow the Robert Service photos from A 67. One of the Star's readers had sent a note that A 67 has the best collection of Service photos he had ever seen.

"Why don't we write the owner of the collection in Alaska to see if the museum can have the photographs for temporary, or better still, permanent showing?" the editorial suggested. Explain to the man that this is where they belong."

"If we obtained enough good photographs, we could put an artist to work to do a bust of Service from them, cast it in bronze and set it up in a prominent place. The rotunda of the new city hall would be an ideal spot."
