

He will be missed

Alaska lost a good friend with the recent passing of Karl Armstrong.

Armstrong was a man who worked with dedication for that which he believed in and for what he believed to be the best for all Alaska's people.

His recent years have seen him involved in controversy as is often the fate of those who lead any cause.

We hope those who note Armstrong's passing forget the difficulties of the past and join in marking the passage of a good man.

He will be missed.