

Providence seeks 50 years of babies

Providence Hospital, in conjunction with its upcoming Golden Anniversary, is looking for all the babies born in the hospital over the last 50 years.

In order to locate as many Providence babies as possible, the hospital will be advertising around the state and seeking help from the news media, to get the word out about the search.

Photos of those born in the hospital are being sought, and people are being asked to write their name, address and year born on the back of a current photo.

When the photos have been collected, they will be arranged in a photographic chronology and displayed during the anniversary celebration. Those sending photos will receive a commemorative birth certificate and an invitation to the celebration.

The 50th anniversary of the Sisters of Providence in Alaska will be commemorated June 26th with an open house.

Further inquiries about the search or the anniversary should be addressed to the Community Relations Department of Providence Hospital, 3200 Providence Drive, Anchorage 99519-6604; telephone, 562-2211.
