

ELS on Lost River project filed

The Corps of Engineers' Final Environmental Impact Statement concerning the Lost River Mining Project on the Seward Peninsula has been filed with the Council on Environmental Quality in Washington.

The impact statement relates to the proposal by Lost River

Mining Corporation, Ltd., to construct a deepwater marine terminal at Point Jackson, 17 miles east of Lost River, serving its fluorite-tin-tungsten mining operation on the western portion of the peninsula.

The city of Nome is about 85 air miles southeast of Lost River.