

They figured they could achieve anything as long as they stuck together, so on Jan. 5, two sisters and their cousin signed up for the Alaska Army National Guard. They include, from left, sisters Laverna Gloko and Barbara Gloko and Judy Evon. The three women are all from Manokotak. They were flown to Anchorage for orientation and briefing before leaving for South Carolina and Georgia, where they will spend four months in training in radio, teletype and satellite communications.
