

Brad Phillips Files

Senator Brad Phillips, (R), Anchorage, last week filed for Alaska's lone seat in the U.S; House of Representatives.

The President of the Alaska State Senate, in filing for the House race, is leaving ten years of state legislative service.

A 44 year old Anchorage insurance man, Brad Phillips has been active in state and local politics beginning in 1956 with two terms on the Anchorage City Council.

Phillips resigned this seat in 1961 to take his place in the State Senate. While in the Senate he served four years as Minority Leader and the following two years served concurrently as Majority Leader and Chairman of the legislative council.

In 1969, Senator Phillips was elected to the Senate's presiding office where he now serves as president. Brad Phillips is well-known throughout the State as an active businessman and civic leader.

Phillips taught management courses at Alaska Methodist University for three years and was associated with the tourist and transportation industry for 15 years.
