

That Elusive Cake—

Sandra Tries, Tries at Carnival

When I went to the carnival, I didn't have to buy tickets for the carnival because our class was racing the 7th grade—7a against 6a.

The sixth grade won of course because we're the greatest. Our class also was racing against each other in our classroom. I won the first prize in our class. I got to get $7.00. Instead of getting $7.00, I got $2.00 worth of watch tickets and $5.00 worth of carnival tickets.

Even though I bought watch tickets I didn't win a watch.

Our class would win the 7th grade because we have the greatest teacher Mr. R. Brad Wilson. His wife's name is Mrs. Carol Wilson.

When I went to the carnival I went to the cakewalk about six times and I still never won a cake. But I got a hot dog, as a matter of fact, I got three hot dogs.

At the carnival I went to the basketball toss most of the time, and I went to the bean bag toss.

They had the dunking machine, where somebody sits on a board, and there is a target that somebody throws a ball at. If they hit the circle the person who is sitting on the board they will fall in the water.

I tried about 25 times and I never hit anybody.
