Frank Hopson, an Eskimo who makes violins that make music so beautiful they make you cry, demonstrates the music of his craft at the Alaska State Fair in Palmer. Hobson is one of many artisans who brought their work to the fair. The fair also brought out animal lovers and animals and Joy Pease shows how the two get together as she communes with a goat who is waiting to be shown. Pease is a student from Anchorage. The fair continues through Labor Day.
