

Alascom Announces An "800" Free-For-All.

Now, Alascom customers can call toll-free "800" numbers across America.

New "800" Prefixes Available to Alaskans

For years, toll-free "800" numbers have been one of the most popular ways for Americans to shop. A free telephone call to an "800" number allows you to place your order or request instantly, and gives you access to merchandise and services all across the country.

Now, Alaskans can join in the fun.

Alascom has already begun connecting all Alaskans to many more of the available toll-free numbers in the Lower 48. And over the next few months, we'll make it possible for you to call thousands more toll-free numbers in the United States.

Cut out and save this list of available "800" prefixes. We'll also publish new prefixes as they become available. And of course, you can continue to use any toll-free numbers that have been available to Alaskans in the past.

Next time you see a toll-free number on TV or in a magazine — give it a try. If it's not available yet — it probably will be soon.

And remember, only Alascom makes "800" toll-free calling possible for all Alaskans.

For more information about choosing your long distance company, call Alascom at 264-7700 in Anchorage or 800-478-7700 toll-free statewide.
