men from Alaska's vast Northwest have converged on Camp Carroll near Anchorage for two weeks of vigorous physical and technical training.

They are the men of the Alaska Guard's 1st and 2nd Scout Battalions, 297th Infantry, the unique Army of the Tundra.

The two predominantly Eskimo battalions arrived at this guard training installation some 8 miles north of Anchorage Saturday and will remain through March 2. Training with them are several smaller guard organizations from Anchorage, Fairbanks, and Juneau.

Commanding the Nome-based 1st Scout Battalion is Lt. Col.
George Schauer, and commanding the Bethel-based 2nd Battalion is Major Donald Shantz.

In overall command of the annual training program is Brig.
Gen. C.E. Reid, assistant adjutant general, Army, Alaska National Guard.

The two scout battalions are identically organized, with a headquarters and headquarters detachment and six lettered companies each. Their mission is to provide reconnaissance, surveillance, and patrol capability in arctic and subarctic areas, and to be capable of guerilla warfare in the arctic.

Both battalions are organized around five-man fire teams assigned to the battalion.

Much of the training will be in the field and the two battalions will spend four nights in tents.

Charlie as Assistant to Charles Booher, the Alaska State Housing Authority's Remote Housing

His duties will involve working directly with the natives in the outlying villages which will a 10 percent share appropriation from the State, have been selected.

Charlie will contact the villagers to explain the program and obtain individual applications for the new housing or repair of the present housing.

Approximately 175 to 200 homes will be built or repaired with this first appropriation, and the villagers themselves will construct the homes under supervision of carpenter foremen.
ASHA will furnish the design,
