Civil Service Announces Summer Jobs

The Civil Service Commission has issued a nation-wide summer employment announcement that covers positions in Alaska. These positions are mainly clerical and related office work including stenographers and typists and subprofessional or subtechnical positions such as engineering aids and laboratory aids.

Not 3 Bullets Removed But Only Part of One

Dr. Ralph B. Williams, Chief, Branch of Laboratories, Alaska Division of Public Health, who has carried five bullets in his head since last May 13, was released from a California Hospital Dec. 12, Williams reported Monday (Dec. 16) by telephone to his Alaskan office.

Since the May attack when hoodlums fired five bullets into

Williams' head, the doughty doctor has actively pursued his work for several months with the Alaska Division of Public Health.

He has been on duty specifically from May 29 until Dec. 2 when he took leave for the current operation to correct nerve, tongue and jaw disorders and for the removal of a bullet fragment.

It had been incorrectly reported that three of the five bullets had been removed after Williams had telephoned his daughter, Mrs. Alan Johnson, Seattle, Washington, followed by another telephone conversation between Mrs. Johnson and her mother, Dr. Williams' wife.

Somewhere there was a misunderstanding leading the daughter and mother to erroneously believe that three bullets which had been frequently discussed by the family had been removed. Actually only one bullet fragment was removed, Dr. Williams said in a telephone message Monday Dec. 16, (1968).

Wien Consolidated Puts on 2nd Jet

Effective December 16 increased jet service was offered to most major cities on Wien-Consolidated routes, A.E. (Bud) Haggberg, System Vice President-Marketing, announced.

Juneau and Whitehorse will be served three times weekly with the new Boeing 737 fan jet, and Barrow will receive a sixth jet flight plus one F-27. The west coast (Nome) will receive six daylight jets a week, three are from Anchorage and three are routed via Fairbanks.

Customer preference dictated the new 8 a.m. daily departure from Fairbanks to Anchorage for a total of 17 per week.

The new 8 a.m. departure from Fairbanks to Anchorage offers the fastest daylight connection to Seattle.
