In front of them is a scale model of St. Michael's as it will look upon completion.

Alaska to Be Featured on Half-Time Program At Los Angeles Rams, Green Bay Packers Tilt

Interest in the Alaska presentation to be featured during the half-time program of the Los Angeles Rams—Green Bay Packers National League Football game in Los Angeles, December 9 has increased during the past few days, to the point that Western Air Lines announced this week that special preparations are being made to handle the many Alaskans planning to take in the event.

A large block of tickets to the game have been reserved for the Alaskans, tours of Disneyland are on the agenda, and charter bus transportation from the airport to the hotel, to the game and return, and back to the airport has been provided for.

The Ram management announced a few days ago, that the half time program would feature Alaska, with the 250 piece Anaheim High School band playing Alaska numbers, and spelling out the word "Alaska" for the national television audience.

Several Alaska civic leaders will take part in various parts of the program.

Further information may be obtained from Western Air Lines or your travel agent.

on a basis of hardship.

—Applicants of native origin, having a quarter or more of Eskimo, Aleut or Indian blood will get a 10 point credit, a measure, Hickel said, which is aimed at making sure sustenance fishermen, and persons who count on the fishery for their basis income, are protected.

The proposal also provides for penalty deductions in cases where gear licenses were obtained during the 1963-67 period but not used, and for "destructive" violations, such as fishing in closed waters or during closed periods.

The Governor emphasized that the proposal provides that any person denied a gear license under the new system, by reason of his ranking in the point credit system, may appeal to the Commissioner of the Department of Fish and Game in Juneau.

The little village of Elim on Norton Bay recently held a poll to see how the villagers would vote for President of their choice. The following tells the story in the village's ELIM EDUCATOR.

"Our reporters ran around the village and asked folks the following question: 'If you were voting for President today, for whom would you vote?'"

"Here are the results:
"Senator Bobby Kennedy—21 votes.

"President Johnson —20 votes.

"Richard Nixon—8 votes.

"Romney—3 votes.

"Reagan and a couple of other fellows were on the ballot but didn't get any votes."

HOTCAKES

Elim third grader, Marlene Saccheus, wrote in the ELIM EDUCATOR about hotcakes:

"This is about eating hotcakes. We start eating hotcakes in school now. This morning they ate hotcakes. I sure like hotcakes. Many children like hotcakes too. Hotcakes are real good.

"Jack ate 10 this morning. He is in the seventh grade. Evelyn and Gary ate 6 hot-cakes. Evelyn is in the third grade and Gary is in the first grade."

First grader, Stanton Nakaruk, wrote more about hotcakes:

"We ate hotcakes this morning. I ate four hotcakes. All the children ate hotcakes too. I like hotcakes. I like the cookers. All the children ate hotcakes this morning."
