"Hooray!" For the new elected President for U.S.A.

On Nov. 5th the people all over United States and Alaska had an election. People voted for President, Representatives, Senators, etc.

I think a man by the name of N-I-X-O-N won the Presidential election. I hope that Nixon does a good job in doing what he is going to do.

I bet Nixon became a proud man when he was elected for new President of U.S.A.

I have no reasons why L.B.J. didn't want to be running the President anymore!

"ALL THE WAY WITH NIXON!!!"

Experimental Shrimp Trawling May Pave Way for Subsistence Food

In line with the State Department of Fish and Game's policy to seek new economic opportunities for the people of the Seward Peninsula and Bering Sea, department biologist Rae Baxter, assisted by Mort Henry and Mike Geiger, conducted experimental shrimp trawling in Norton Sound off Nome.

A mini shrimp trawl, ten feet in width, was dragged along the bottom in depths ranging from 50 to 116 feet. A dory powered by two small outboard motors was used to drag the trawl.

Prior to each drag, a small sampling dredge was lowered to test the composition of the sea bottom. Mud bottom was found best for catches and ease of dragging; a rocky, debris-strewn bottom was destructive to the trawl.

A total of 13 drags were made, each lasting from 15 to 30 minutes. No large quantities of marketable shellfish were discovered in the brief survey but a wide variety of marine organisms were obtained including shrimp, small codfish, crabs, sculpins, mollusks, flounders, etc.

Results from this experimental exploration were not considered conclusive as to the relative abundance of shrimp off Nome.

The operation did demonstrate that fishing with a small trawl was feasible, relatively inexpensive and required little manpower.

It is an operation that local residents with small capital and need for seasonal work might engage in commercially if commercial quantities of shrimp are found.

Local residents may also engage in this type of trawling to obtain seafoods to fill their subsistence food lockers.

Paper Boy Says Times Comes Late At Anaktuvuk

(From NUNAMIUT NEWS)

My job is selling the Tundra Times. But when the Tundra Times are late most people say they're too late. But they buy them. Because they like to read them.

But when papers are left over I have to tear the top off and send the dollar to the Tundra Times.

But they have a long time to print them and that's why they are quite late.

Newspapers Donated to Alaska Library

A valuable file of the Juneau newspaper ALASKA NEWS, 1893-1897, was donated to the Alaska Historical Library by Felix Gordon Grey.

The ALASKA NEWS, a weekly newspaper, took over the printing press of the ALASKA MINER, according to Phyllis Nottingham, librarian for the Alaska Historical Library.

Among the material donated is an album of Nome photographs taken by Dobbs in early 1900. A ledger from the Levy and Cohen store at Dyea, 1881-1901, was also placed in the archives.

Such donations are most welcome and greatly assist those researching Alaska history.
