

Sen. Mike Gravel Pushes Idea—

Review of Management of Indian Funds by Interior Department Asked

WASHINGTON—In a letter to the Comptroller General signed by Senator George McGovern, Chairman of the Subcommittee on Indian Affairs, and Senator Mike Gravel Subcommittee Member, the General Accounting Office was requested to conduct a comprehensive review and audit of the practices and procedures of the Department of the Interior in the managing of Indian settlement funds awarded in court judgments.

Senator Gravel had called for such a review in the course of hearings on two bills (S.2628 and S.2650) concerning the disposition of funds awarded the Tlingit and Haida Indians of Alaska two years ago.

Senator Gravel's bill would set new precedent by allowing the tribe to expend and invest its $7.5 million judgment free of supervision by the Department of the Interior. Interior presently "oversees" some $320 million in tribal monies.

A major question posed in the letter was, "Given the present fact of government involvement in Indian settlements after the awards are made, how capable is Interior in performing the role of investment counselor and financial manager?"

It is expected that issues to be examined will include the appropriateness of the location and staffing of the BIA financial management activity at Albuquerque, New Mexico; the adequacy of procedures employed by BIA in placing the funds with the banking community; the relation of BIA to the Indian tribes and their legal counsel with respect to the role played by each in investment decisions; and the timeliness with which the agency acts in carrying out these mutual tasks.

"I disagree fundamentally with the absurd idea that no Indian settlement should be managed by the recipients without Interior holding the veto power," Senator Gravel said, "but if Interior is going to have the responsibility, it should handle the monies as professionally and with as great returns as would a private investment manager. We must see to this."

What makes a bank progressive ?

1916 We started in a little one-room bank. We only had two things going for us: a sincere desire to provide up-to-date financial services and a desire to help the community grow. Now, in 1970, we're Alaska's Number One bank with 24 branches all over the State. Assets are in excess of $178,000,000. Located in our Anchorage office, the Alaska Heritage Library houses an extensive collection of Alaskan art and artifacts. Old prospectors' maps, Gold Rush newspapers and other Alaska art treasures reflect the history of our State and the National Bank of Alaska's interest in it. Alaskan industry is booming. The Lumber industry increased its yield some 35,000,000 board-feet over the record high established in 1968. New harvest possibilities opened up in the fish industry, and drilling on the Arctic North Slope revealed tremendous new oil fields.

NBA is a financial partner to a lot of it. Alaskan exports to Japan totalled over $65,000,000 last year. In fact, international trade in general is sky-rocketing. And NBA is solving attendant problems in its International Banking Department, newly created last year to assist importers and exporters. All these things make a Bank progressive. Statewide Service — State-size Strength.
