

For Special Needs—Teacher Aide for Dillingham

Commissioner of Education Dr. Cliff R. Hartman announced that the State Department has approved a teacher aide proposal from the Dillingham City Schools.

The project will be funded by a $9,550.00 grant from the U.S. Office of Education under Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. Title I, ESEA provides funds to school districts for programs designed to meet special needs of educationally deprived children.

The Dillingham teacher aide program is designed to improve the learning experiences of under-achieving elementary students in Dillingham. Three full-time teacher aides will work with elementary teachers to effectuate better classroom instruction.

Aides will be assigned tasks directly by the teachers with whom they work. In addition to general assistance in the classroom, the aides will give increased personal help to academically disinterested and underachieving students.

Teachers will identify specific needs of these children and aides will provide them with individual attention and materials geared to these needs.

The Dillingham Title I program aims to improve academic achievement and students' attitudes toward learning by providing additional assistance to elementary children before they are discouraged from further effort.

we drill in Alaska we sell in Atlanta

Atlanta. That's where we've set up our first BP gasoline station in the U.S.

And before long there'll be BP stations from Maine to Florida. Because we've just acquired the complete Sinclair distribution system in the eastern U.S.

Atlanta is where we have our operations headquarters for the "lower 48," too.

What's it to you? We thought you'd like to know where we're going. Because the very same company that's drilling on the North Slope of Alaska is now marketing in Atlanta.
