Murphy to Students—

'Get Involved in Politics'

"Get involved in politics. It is a duty and an obligation young people owe their nation for the privileges of living in America!" Such was the advice Sen. George L. Murphy, R. Calif., gave to more than 100 University students listening to him Sunday afternoon during a special "Sound Off" program in the Student Union cafeteria.

Sen. Murphy's "Get Involved" advice came in response to a student question concerning the best way for young people to get the facts about what is going on in government.

It came as the climax to more than a half hour of definitive and pertinent question and answer exchange between students and speaker.

Obviously at ease with his young audience, Senator Murphy welcomed questions on a variety of subjects and shared bits of his own youthful experiences as a college student with his listeners.

Following the "Sound Off" appearance, Senator Murphy moved up to the KUAC studio where he taped a fifteen minute interview with Scott Loll, a student announcer.

With his party, Sen. Murphy

then visited the University museum and the Musk Ox farm before going to International Airport to enplane for California.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Elmer Rasmuson will bring to the United States thirty years of solid recognizable accomplishment in economic development. As Alaska's most successful businessman, he can apply his knowledge and experience for all Alaskans in the halls of Congress.

During the recent past, the federal government has seen fit to punish Alaska for political reasons. Educational funds have been cut back! Road monies and vital airport construction funds have been cut in disproportionate percentage to other states. Extensions of time for state selection of lands have been denied.

Elmer Rasmuson knows how to accomplish more for Alaska at the federal level and will not be satisfied until these and other stumbling blocks have been removed. Economic development doesn't just happen—it takes experienced hard workers who know how to get things done.

You couldn't buy Elmer Rasmuson's knowledge, experience and ability—but you can have it for your vote! Invest in Alaska's future—vote for Elmer Rasmuson for United States Senator.
