GUN CONTROL

The violence and crime which rips our country apart are rooted in the bowels of our nation's morality. Gun control is not the solution to our problems—and particularly not here in Alaska.

For Alaskans, control of our firearms is control of a segment of Alaska's independent nature. Yet the Democratic Presidential candidate believes there are even more "ways" to effectively control the right to have arms. It is, therefore, necessary to oppose vigorously any candidate sharing that position.

Elmer Rasmuson believes in Alaska's heritage and the traditions that make our state great. He believes that the federal government's role in this vital issue should be one limited to cooperation with those states desiring control of guns. He does not believe the federal government should attempt to impose regulation on those states, including Alaska, who do not desire such controls.

Make your vote count for something—vote for Elmer Rasmuson for United States Senator.

"Leaving the moral issue aside for the moment, and concentrating on the economic aspect of the matter, the granting of 40 million acres means that much more area over and above that granted by the statehood act which will remain in control of Alaskans. Similarly, the placing of 500 million dollars in the hands of Alaskan citizens for capital improvements, housing and education is bound to be a great asset."

"It must be recognized," Silides concluded, "that anything that we can do to bring about a viable economy to any depressed minority will greatly lessen the tax burden on the rest of us and increase the amount of risk capital available to the economy as a whole."

Klukwan Grant

JUNEAU — Gov. Walter J. Hickel's office reports that the community of Klukwan, between Haines and Skagway, has received a state Rural Development Agency grant for $1,250.

The funds will be used to pay wages of village residents working on the installation and repair of 35 power transmission line utility poles.

The project is part of a program to install a new power generator in Klukwan.

Supervising the project for the community will be John Willard, Dick Hotch and Johanna Hotch. The grant is the ninth made to the village by RDA since 1959.

No human being is constituted to know the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; and even the best of men must be content with fragments, with partial glimpses, never the full fruition.
